

An interesting Book about the Cures of Dr. of Boston.
ents of Some of the War

From the Boston Globe published a short time ago an article about the professor R. C. Flower of Boston, who came into possession of a book devoted to the life and work of a man giving numerous accounts of MIRACULOUS CURES of the most supernatural kind. We believe a review of this book will be highly interesting to our readers. It reads more like a fairy tale than any other book I have else, yet every claim is substantiated by numerous authorities below a number of pages. In his book, that our readers will find more of the doings of this his professional triumph is almost a circumferential one is a biographical history which starts out by saying that some years Dr. R. C. Flower, of the Eastern world, was performing what are called supernatural cures. In attributing Dr. Flower's triumphs, says:— "The process is a toy in his hands. A phenomenal way he sheds his human eye, life into the dead, and the sick room of its sufferer is a of its prey."

Flower has been called a "man of important and bad cases" and to the Chesapeake, from the Grande, the greatest PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS.—Professionally Dr. Flower stands with the progressive and the best of his time. He is pre-eminently a leader in the very critical cases in which distinguished Boston physicians' practice said to your satisfaction.

I regard Dr. Flower as the most wonderful of living physicians. The most wonderful of men called him at different times one of my patients after another, as I told him.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN

It is an old saying that drought causes farmers to die, but too much rain starves them. Whatever the result, it is evident there is no lack of rain the present season. It has rained often and in such a way that cultivated crops give the best returns in the comparatively dry seasons. Grass, however, has an exception to this. Fields and pastures give their best growth in wet seasons. The present is an illustration of this. While in the spring grass in fields where is showing a most vigorous condition and rapid growth. So long as it is so the cattle will not lack for feed, and the case the cattle thrive the owners will be none the less either morally or financially.

The American Cattle Raisers give the following we presume for the benefit of those who will have a good word for the crow:

"Stock of hawks has succeeded in keeping the estate bugs from the prairie and field of cattle, but the owners on a 'cattle' day of total loss have been on a 'cattle' day of total loss."
